Predict approval of control bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A co-author of a bill that would extend wage and price control authority for another year predicts its quick approval when Congress returns from Easter recess on April 30, the day the authority is to

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said his prediction is based on the "current disastrous inflationary indicators.

Reuss, a member of the Senate-House conference committee that produced the compromise bill, referred only in general to inflationary pressures but his comment came after the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued a report saying consumer prices in March increased at the highest rate in

A record 3.2 per cent jump in grocery prices was the biggest factor in the increase. That rise followed record increases of 2.3 per cent in February and 2.5 per cent in January and was the largest since the BLS began tabulating grocery prices in

Reuss predicted no difficulty for the control bill in the Senate because the bill is essentially identical to the original Senate-passed measure.

"As for the House," he said, "the Senate provisions added in the conference report sufficiently strengthened the weak House version

so as to make it acceptable to many of us who voted against the House bill on the first time around.

State Department spokesman Charles W. Bray said Hanoi "would find a prompt and quite positive response on our part" if it showed good faith by complying with Article 20 of the agreement. Article 20 calls for the withdrawal of all foreign forces from Cambodia and Laos and a respect for their neutrality.

across Ohio as spring field activity remains below that of 1972 and well below the five-year average progress

Poor weather and muddy fields limited fieldwork to under one day during the week ending April 13. Soil moisture supplies are rated adequate by two per cent of the reporters and surplus by the remaining 98 per cent.

As of Monday, April 16, plowing for corn and soybeans was 25 per cent complete as little progress was made last week. Last year, 60 per cent was plowed by this time. Normal progress for the date is also 60 per cent.

Oat seeding is now over 10 per cent done compared with 20 per cent seeded in 1972 and is well below the five-year average of 50 per cent seeded by April

Very little progress was made in potato planting last week as farmers are hardly more than just started in most areas. Normally, 15 per cent of the potatoes are planted by this date. Under five per cent of the sugar beets are planted compared to 15 per cent for the date in 1972 and normal progress of 35 per cent. Tobacco beds are now 45 per cent sown, slightly behind the 1972 progress and compares with 65 per cent normally seeded by April 16.

Winter wheat is reported in fair to good condition with some reports of spotty stands and drowned out areas in some fields. Pastures are reported in fair to good condition.

Frost damage to the 1973 peach crop varies throughout the State; some report very little damage, while other report total losses.

Farm activities were little different from last week with some manure and fertilizer being spread where ground conditions permitted, livestock care, and machinery maintenance being the major items.

Agriculture Markets

Sharply higher prices for wheat, feed grains and soybeans and sharply lower prices for hogs highlighted developments in commodity markets during the first two weeks of April. Cattle prices remained steady

Cash corn at Chicago reached $1.66 a bushel, about 40 cents above April, 1972, levels. Soybean prices continued their volatility as cash beans at Chicago sold around $6.50 a bushel, up for the two-week period, and nearly $3 more than a year ago.

Wholesale soybean meal at Decatur, Ill., traded around $205 a ton, up $30 in two weeks. A year ago soybean meal was selling at $94.50. Wholesale soybean oil prices traded in a range of one cent per pound, at around 14.5 cents, which was two cents higher than a year ago.

Primarily as a result of greatly increased sales to Russia, cash wheat at Kansas City sold for $2.45 a bushel. This was 12.5 cents higher than in early April and 85 cents higher than in April of last year.

Hog prices declined from $2-$3.50 per hundredweight during the first two weeks of April.

Choice steer prices remained nearly - around $44.50 per hundredweight at Omaho - up $10.50 from a year earlier. Choice steer beef carcasses traded around $71.50, which was $1.50 higher than in early April.

No. 1 large white eggs traded at 41.5 cents per dozen in Chicago in early April, up 2.5 cents for the two-week period. Prices are 22 cents per dozen higher than last year. Broiler prices were steady trading around 46 cents per pound, up 20 cents from year earlier prices.

Reiterman markets 1,500 heads of hogs a year from a grow-out operation. purchasing one-third of his pigs locally and the rest from Kentucky. He farms a total of 850 acres with his father, Raymond. He also feeds out about 30 head of cattle a year, keeps a few sheep to clean up pastures, and raises corn and soybeans.

His winning idea described a way to ransfer small pigs or larger hogs from one place to another without a loading chute. He puts side boards or stock racks on the new-type of implements trailer that will lie flat on the ground when released. He says this method works well.

Ohio ponds Management for fish growth COLUMBUS - Pond water is vital in following rates under average con-

the life of fish. In addition to providing them a "swimming pool," it nourishes their food, supplies oxygen, and gives them protection. Its temperature and pH (hydrogen ion concentration) can be a matter of life or death for fish.

Microscopic plants and animals called plankton are basic fish foods. The production of plankton is directly related to the fertility of the water, reports Tom Stockdale, Extension wildlife specialist of the School of Natural Resources, Ohio State Uni-

Plankton is eaten by small fish and other organisms such as aquatic insects and their larvae which are in turn eaten by the larger fish. In any link in this food chain is weak or missing, an unbalanced condition will result, and fish production will suffer.

According to Stockdale, the principle ource of water for most Ohio ponds is runoff from the watershed of the pond. This runoff water carries fertile matter from soils of surrounding land into the pond. As a result, the fertility of the soils in an area determine the food for plankton in the water of the pond. Most runoff-fed in Ohio do not need additional fertilizer.

Where springs provide the principle source of water for the pond or where water is pumped into the pond from a ditch or tile drains, low fertility may be a problem in ponds managed for fish

"ONE QUICK method for determining the fertility of your pond is the 'elbow test,'' Stockdale suggests. 'Immerse your arm vertically into the water with your fingers turned at a right angle to your arm. The image of your fingers should start to blue at a depth of 15 to 18 inches. A plankton bloom that permits light penetration no deeper than 15 to 18 inches into the pond is an indication of good fertility.

If light is penetrating to depths greater than 24 inches (hand is still clear) and this condition continues, Stockdale suggests that it may be necessary to supplement the natural fertility of the pond. This can be done in several ways. Improving the fertility of the watershed will gradually improve the fertility of the runoff-fed pond.

Another method is the direct application of fertilizer to the pond. This practice requires regular observation and should be initiated only by the very conscientious manager.

For ponds needing extra fertility, the first application of 80 to 100 pounds of fertilizer per surface acre may be made in late March or early April. Fertilizers balanced for the three main components or balanced for nitrogen and phosphorus and light for potash are suitable. Examples are 8-8-4, 10-10-10, Gary Reiterman, Rt. 1, Mount or 12-12-12. Fertilizers should not contain such "inert" ingredients as lime, gypsum, or tobacco or have supplemental herbicides, insecticides, or fungicides.

> The first application should produce a plankton bloom that is green or brown in color. If light still penetrates 100 deep, application may be repeated in 10 days. Continue applications as needed, but do not apply fertilizer after August 15.

> Over-fertility is possible. It can result from too much fertilizer or from natural introduction into the pool of such high fertility materials as barnyard runoff. Excessive fertility usually exists if light penetration is less than 15 inches. Over-fertility can contribute to a fish kill.

> SEVERAL FACTORS affect the rate of growth of fish such as fertility of water, availability of food chain organisms, and density of fish population. Stockdale says that as a general rule, fish will grew at the Largemouth bass, inches in length for first five years: 6.3, 9.0, 11.6, 13.5, 15.8 respectively in length.

Bluegill, inches in length for first five years: 3.2, 4.6, 5.7, 6.6, 7.4. Channel catfish, inches in length for first five years: 6.4, 9.6, 12.6, 14.3, 16.7. Water temperatures affect different species of fish in various ways. Largemouth bass usually spawn in May when water temperature reaches 60 degrees. Bluegills spawn when the emperature reaches 70 degrees. Trout will not normally reproduce in water warmer than 70 degrees and will not survive long when the water temperature exceeds 70 to 80 degrees for Ohio ponds will support trout.

Also water temperature must be considered when using chemicals in pond management. Most fish toxicants and herbicides are more effective when the water is 60 degrees or warmer. Some herbicides applies at recommended rates are safe for fish; however, they will kill fish eggs or fry (newly hatched fish). Therefore, temperature provides a clue as to when fish are spawning and may influence the timing of chemical applications. Fish require at least four parts per million of dissolved oxygen, so it is important to consider this in pond management. Inexpensive test kits are available that enable the owner to measure the amount of dissolved more than a few days. This is why few oxygen in water.

The Farm Notebook

Farmers are waiting for dry weather

County Extension Agent, Agriculture Four days of rain this week makes it difficult to prepare this column with much enthusiasm. We thought the nice weather last weekend might be a sign of things of come, but Mother Nature failed again.

Most farmers that I have talked to during the last week are eager to get back in the field. My guess is that we will see a lot of change in the usual tillage practices once farmers can get back in the field - especially among those farmers with no-till planters.

The Ohio Crop Reporting Service says that there was less than one day suitable for field work last week. Statewide reports indicate that plowing is only 25 per cent completed compared to a normal of 60 per cent for this time

FERTILIZER and petroleum may be in short supply. Chet Phillips, ASCS office manager, called Wednesday morning and said that his office will be making weekly checks to determine the extent of any fertilizer shortages. Several things are working together to compound the fertilizer problem. Wet weather last fall delayed harvest which meant there was little fertilizer applied. It also slowed rail transportation of grain so that railroad Mississippi, also took its agricultural transportation was not available for

Wet spring weather is adding to the farmer's problem. Wet fields stop fertilizer applications so that many farmers will need fertilizer at the same time and dealers won't be able to deliver it fast enough.

Several local fertilizer distributors indicate that they are not experiencing any shortages at present but may have problems with getting fertilizer to their warehouses later this spring due to transportation problems.

One distributor said that local farmers are aware of the possible shortages and have purchased fertilizer ahead and are storing it on the farm. At any rate there will be a mad rush for fertilizer deliveries as soon as we get a break in the weather.

FOOD PRICES! What makes them so high? I saw some interesting figures earlier this week explaining what makes up the price of a 29 cent can of tomatoes on the supermarket shelf. The figures come from the Del Monte

The raw tomato costs 3.4 cents. The processor gets 17 cents of which 12.8 cents is for the can and processing costs, 3.8 cents for shipping and 0.4 cents profit. The wholeseller gets 1.6 cents of which 0.3 cents is profit. The retailer gets 7 cents, of which 0.4 cents

I saw another figure this week that made me think about food prices. Maybe food prices aren't too high. Maybe its the price of the things we buy at the grocery store that are really too high! Would you believe that 30 cents of every dollar spent in the grocery store is spent for non-food items such as soap, brooms, light bulbs, tobacco products, etc, etc, etc.

Strawberry harvesting equipment developed

WOOSTER - It appears that the nation's strawberry growers may be the next agricultural commodity group to take the big step from hand to mechanical harvest. A harvesting machine, now being developed, may hit the market this season, according to a report from Dr. E. L. Denisen, chairman of the Department of Horticulture at Iowa State University, Denisen spoke at a national conference of small fruit research workers held at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster. He said a Michigan-based firm is now developing a mechanical harvester combining the best features of pilot machines developed at experiment stations in two midwestern states.

A mechanical strawberry harvester was developed and refined at Iowa State University by horticulturists and agricultural engineers. At the same time, workers at the University of Arkansas developed, improved, and patented a harvester of a different design. Both machines feature a onceover harvest.

The Iowa State machine uses a scoop, vibrating tines, forced air, conveyor belts and plastic netting. A rotary mower clips the plants.

The Arkansas invention was accepted for commercial production by Blueberry Equipment Company. It is self-propelled with a sickle-bar mounted on the front. The machine uses comb and brush strippers, elevators, and pneumatic system which literally "vacuums" up the berries. Debris is blown out the back of the harvester. The machine is much larger than the Iowa invention, and is mounted on high-flotation tires.

Iowa State scientists, in perfecting their machine, developed a new picking device featuring paired corkscrew-shaped, vinyl heads. These show great promise for separating berries from the plants with a minimum of damage. Arkansas and Iowa workers got together with Blueberry Equipment Company personnel and have agreed to use the patents of both research stations in a single machine using several concepts which should bring the harvest of the highly perishable crop to quicker realization.

Denisen said he felt the cooperation and sharing of the ideas would bring a more rapid conclusion to the development of a practical, efficient machine to harvest processing strawberries.

The Iowa scientist said that breeding programs for concentrated ripening are continuing at both instutions. And while the mechanical harvester development signals a new era in strawberry production, Denisen feels many problems remain to be solved especially in breeding for disease resistance, firmness of berries, and improved yield of single harvest berries. The machine will also become more sophisticated. Denisen expects cultural sytems in strawberry production to undergo evolutionary changes in the years ahead.

Denisen's report was one of a number presented during the 2-day scientist conference. Most of the information exchanged by the scientists was preliminary data from research with diseases and culture of nearly every small fruit crop grown in North America, including strawberries, bramble fruits, blueberries, cranberries, and grapes.

Farm tractor accidents kill 611 in Ohio

During the 17-year period, 1956 through 1972, there have been 611 fatal farm tractor accidents investigated in Ohio, according to W.E. Stuckey, Extension leader, safety, Ohio State

Tractor overturn was responsible for 63 per cent of the victims. This was an average of 22 deaths per year from overturns alone, he says. Two-thirds of these deaths occurred when the tractor overturned sidewise.

About 50 per cent of those killed were members of full-time farmer families, and 20 per cent had full-time employment other than farming. Stuckey points out that 19 per cent of the deaths were youngsters 15 years of age and under, while those over 65 made up 22

Only one-fifth of the deaths occurred on the highway, and weather was a factor in 11 per cent of the accidents. Stuckey says. Mechanical failure was a contributing factor in less than six per cent of the cases, but about one-half of the fatalities occurred with wide-front-

'Tax preference' income

Taxpayers bruised and smarting from their annual encounter with the Internal Revenue Service will find no balm in Sen. Walter F. Mondale's new variations on the loophole theme. The burden of the Minnesota senator's message goes like this: "Thousands of wealthy Americans are piling up huge amounts of income every year from capital gains, oil depletion allowance, tax shelters and other tax loopholes, and paying a smaller percentage of it in taxes than working people making $6,000 a figures that a substantial number of people are legally able to escape paying anything like their fair share of the tax burden.

The 1969 Tax Reform Act provided, among other things, that a minimum tax must be imposed on various kinds of income shielded in one way or another from taxation at normal rates. This involves such things as the oil depletion allowance, capital gains provisions, stock options, provisions for faster than usual depreciation, and so forth.

Treasury Department figures show, as Sen. Mondale notes, that such income is treated tenderly indeed despite the minimum tax provision. In 1961 almost 24,000 Americans had "tax preference" income averaging about 166,000 dollars each. "These favored taxpayers," the senator 'ells us, "paid an average tax of only four per cent on their loophole income." No minimum tax at all was paid, says Sen. Mondale, by another 75,000-plus individuals who enjoy tax preference income averaging $30,013 apiece.

This sort of disclosure would be irritating enough to wage earners at any time. It is particularly so just when the annual plucking and shearing operation has reached its

The representative was, of course, Adam Clayton Powell from Harlem a talented, star-crossed Negro who had long offended the Southern barons by his refusal to say "Yes, Massa." His life-style, combined with his power as chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, had built up a legion of enemies. (Powell died April 4,

The legality or illegality of some of Powell's transactions is not the issue there is no doubt about his casual approach to certain articles in the criminal code. The point is that the House of Representatives is not a court of law: when a Representative appears to be sworn in, the only relevant question of the legality of his election. But in Powell's case, the House chose to sit as judge, prosecutor, and jury on his personal characteristics.

IT BEGAN when the House passed a resolution barring Powell from his seat pending investigation and recommendation by a Select Committee. Fortunately for students of American

When the letter was prepared, the committee's counsel noted that "in the second paragraph the word "summon" is used. This is a word stronger than 'invite' but not so strong as the issuance of a subpoena.

One member immediately argued that the word summon "will sound to the public like an order to appear. Then if Mr. Powell should refuse, it would seem an illegal act.

He preferred "invite," and "invite"

In the interval a great deal must be done if it is to be anything more than a television spectacular with prime ministers and presidents as the supporting cast for the American star.

First and foremost on the agenda must be the effort to negotiate an agreement covering the export of American farm products to Western Europe. If the Common Market countries, with France and Germany calling the tune, hold out for barriers against low-cost American feed grains, the hope of any equitable trading arrangement will be out the window.

Nor can this be done by personal diplomacy at the summit level. Hard, intensive preparatory work is essential

American farm production is the ace in the hole in the tough poker game aimed at reversing America's disastrous trade deficits, which over two years have amounted to $9.5 billion.

suspicion and distrust. One reason is the Vietnam War. The Christmas bombing of North Vietnam started a new wave of distrust of America's

While this only occasionally found official expression, it was reflected in a deep undercurrent of public opinion. The continuing waves of B-52s with their massive attacks on Cambodia and Laos and the employment of South Vietnamese troops supplied and transported by the United States can only accentuate the resentment of Big Brother's uninhibited power

An interesting footnote is Sweden. On Dec. 23, as the bombing of the North reached a crescendo, Prime Minister Olof Palme compared President Nixon's action to the genocide ordered by Hitler against the Jews, Poles and Russians. This outraged opinion not only in this country but among many

The then Swedish Ambassador Hubert de Besche was called in by Under Secretary of State U. Furthermore, the No. 2 American in Stockholm, John Guthrie, acting since

So he set one of Henry Kissinger's aides to come up with a suitable enemy.

The answer was Sweden — an enemy anyway you looked at it - pornography, socialism, neutrality, the gamut of emotions guaranteed to raise the hackles

The immediate reaction in Sweden was to increase Palme's popularity in the polls. That has since been reversed, and the latest test showed a 10-point spread in favor of the center parties.

Palme was accused in Parliament of isolating Sweden. The guessing is that he will be defeated in the elections in

Meanwhile, the standoff continues, with the Administration determined not to give any sign of relenting.

THIS IS, of course, a footnote reflecting presidential pique as much as anything else. The undercurrent of resentment on the continent is a matter for real worry. In West Germany Chancellor Willy Brandt had to use all his authority and his skill in political maneuver to quiet a revolt at the Congress of his Social-Democratic party. The young leftists staging massive demonstrations in Bonn insist the Brandt government stop underwriting the presence of 220,000 American troops in Germany 25 years after the end of World War II.

THIS IS a beautiful illustration of action and reaction on both sides of the Atlantic. Influential officials here, not least among them Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, want to cut back or withdraw entirely the U.S. forces in Germany. While German purchases of military hardware in this country help to overcome the cost of maintaining that force and their dependents, nevertheless it contributes to the dollar deficit.

Tax delays prove costly for schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Delays in collecting 1972 taxes on the county level have caused schools in at least 51 counties to borrow money to operate for part of this year, an official of the Ohio School Board Association said

Schools needed the borrowed funds son, Kevin, with a breakfa after auditors in 66 counties requested 30-day extensions and 13 counties asked for two-month extensions from the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals in collecting 1972 taxes. School districts receive about 73 per cent of the local property tax collections.

Leonard Myers, a supervisor at the tax board, said about $1.3 billion from delinquent county collections would be earmarked for the school districts for use throughout 1973.

Tax bills are due to be mailed annually Dec. 20. Any extension is initially requested from the county commission for 30 days. Should additional extensions be necessary, the Board of Tax Appeals has unlimited authorization to approve them one month at a time. Hearings are not always necessary.

'At the hearing, they must give us the reason for the delay. To have an extension beyond April 25 even this year is an unreasonable time," said Dale Teeters, a board official.

Lee Trevino grabs golf tourney lead

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — this season, said the winds shifted so Lee Trevino is within sight of achieving that "I played into the wind all day." two of his prime career goals.

He had a one-shot lead going into today's third round of the $200,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions. Once more he ticked off those major targets he has set for himself:

"I really want to win this tournament," Trevino said after fighting gusty, shifting winds for a one-underpar 71 in Friday's second round.

"I consider this one of the most important tournaments in the worldmaybe No. 4. You want to win any tournament you play in, but when you beat the champions of all the other tournaments, then you're a champion of champions.

"And I want to win $1 million faster than anyone else has ever done it.'

Trevino could achieve both with a victory here. He has career earnings of more than $960,000—in less than six full years on the tour-and this tournament offers a $40,000 first prize.

There are only three other players— Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper—who have passed the $1 million mark in pro golf career earnings. Nicklaus did it the fastest, in just over 10 years

And both Nicklaus and Palmer are challenging Trevino for the title in this tournament that brings together an elite field of 31 players who have won regular tour titles in the last 12 months.

Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, had another 70 on the 7,114-yard La Costa Country Club course and was just one stroke off the pace at 140 despite some erratic play. He was tied with big J.C. Snead, the runner-up in the Masters, who had a second round 68.

The 43-year-old Palmer, like Nicklaus a three-time winner of this tournament, was one more back at 141 after a 71. He was tied with Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, who had a 68.

First round leader Jimmy Colbert fell back in the windy, threatening weather. He blew 10 strokes higher than Thursday's score with a 76 and was tied at 142 with Bert Yancey and Homero Blancas Masters champion Tommy Aaron

1953 Reds to be featured

Enjoyable Old Timers game set June 16 at Riverfront

CINCINNATI — The 1953 Cincinnati Reds and a combined team of 1953 National and American League allstars will be paired in the 1973 Old Timers game at Riverfront Stadium

The extravaganza will precede the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game, which starts at 5:30 p.m.

Invitations have been extended to many of the former stars, including two Hall of Famers — Stan Musial and Casey Stengel.

IT WAS 20 years ago that the last allstar game was played at Crosley Field, a 5-1 victory by the National League.

The ptiching staff of the 1953 Reds featured lefthanders Joe Nuxhall and Ken Raffensberger and righthander Herm Wehmeier.

Two of the young infielders, Roy McMillan and Johnny Temple, were starting on their way to stardom. Ted Kluszewski had reached his prime as he hit 40 homers and knocked in 108 runs in 1953. Steady Bobby Adams led National League third sackers in assists that season.

Gus Bell led the outfielders, hitting 300 with 30 home runs and 105 runsbatted-in. Jim Greengrass also knocked in 100 runs and Willard Marshall was a consistent performer in right field. The catchers were Hobie Landrith, Andy Seminick and Frank Baldwin.

Although the 1953 Reds finished sixth, it was a popular team with the fans and one that was on its way to better things. Six members of the team, Bell, Temple, McMillan, Nuxhall, Kluszewski and Wally Post, eventually were selected to the Reds' Hall of Fame. They have all been invited to return for the reunion, along with many others on that club. The 1953 all-star game was a good one and well-remembered. It was highlighted by the play of Enos Slaughter, the Old Warhorse who is now head baseball coach at Duke University It was a defensive gem by Slaughter that is best recalled and it ranks among the greatest catches in all-star history. Harvey Kuenn lashed a wicked liner down the rightfield line, labeled an extra-base hit all the way. But Slaughter raced to his left and slid on his shoulder to make the catch.

Slaughter and the two Hall of Famers are just three of the 18 all-stars invited to recapture some of the events of that all-star contest.

Such National League favorites as Pee Wee Reese, Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons have been invited as well as American League stalwarts George Kell, Larry Doby, Billy Goodman and Nellie Fox.

Old Timers Day at Riverfront Stadium has been one of the most popular and enjoyable days in the last

Slaughter had everyone buzzing in the 1971 East-West Old Timers contest when he went head-first into second base, stretching a single into a double just as he did 20 years ago for the St. Louis Cardinals.

Mystery gas forces 50 families out

WILLIAMSBURG, Mich. (AP) -Natural gas eruptions have forced some 50 families to evacuate their The gross was $153.4 million, from homes near this Michigan community. Officials are not sure what is causing Henry Kaplan, executive director of the bubbling craters. the lottery, said Thursday about $65.8

Because of the danger that a spark might ignite an explosion, State Police and Grand Traverse County sheriff's deputies cordoned off the area, power was shut off and smoking was banned. Officials, including geologists from Michigan's Department of Natural Resources, said they are baffled by the eruptions. They appeared to rule out leakage from a gas well about three miles away, however.

The area is in the western part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula, not far from Lake Michigan.

County officials said geyser activity increased Thursday. Numerous potholes and geysers have appeared in the area, honeycombing an area about four miles in circumference

Families began evacuating before sunrise Thursday.

One large crater - 20 feet across and two to three feet deep - cut across Michigan 72, forcing police to close a 15-mile stretch of the highway

The air of the affected area was heavy with the gas, observers said, as the geysers erupted with sounds much like roaring waterfalls. Some of the venting gas forced subterranean water to spout two to three feet high.

Fingernails a Clue to Defects

Scientific research yields its dividends in the strangest ways. Even a small observation may be responsible for clinical advantages. Fingernails of newborn babies were found to be useful in determining the presence of congenital defects.

Dr. George Cassady of the University of Alabama discovered that the amount of nitrogen in the nails indicates some types of birth disorders.

Dr. Cassady says "the nail trimmings obtained within two weeks of birth can be useful in determining early signs of disorders and beginning treatment immediately.

Such findings emphasize the constant need to encourage scientific research along the most esoteric paths.

A novel and interesting approach to the problem of migraine headaches has just been released by the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. Patients are taught the methods of using biofeedback to control brain waves.

Dr. J.D. Sargent and his co-workers found that there is a correlation between the relief from migraine, cluster headaches, and an increased blood flow in the hands.

Patients who learned the biofeedback approach were able to increase the flow of blood in the hands and thereby elevate the temperature of the skin. This can then be responsible for the control of the headache. The preliminary studies hold promise for this new method of controlling an old and distressing disorder.

When the skin of some people is stroked with a pin or a tongue depressor or even a cotton-tipped applicator, red streaks appear on the surface. This increased sensitivity is known as dermagraphism, or skin writing. A name or design can be elicited by the gentlest scratching of the skin surface.

This finding has been known to exist in some people with increased activity of the thyroid gland. Even in the absence of any medical condition dermagraphism can occur.

Dr. U. W. Leavell, of the University of Kentucky Medical Center, has successfully used this interesting phenomenon to study the possibility of a drug overdose in unconscious

This can be a valuable addition to the present method in use for the rapid determination of the cause of unconsciousness.

South is in six spades and West leads a diamond, won by declarer with the ace. What should he do next?

Eleven tricks are in sight, counting a diamond ruff in dummy, and the only real problem is to avoid a heart loser. Obviously, if a heart finesse is attempted and succeeds, the slam will come marching home. Equally, if the finesse is taken and fails, so will the

Similarly, if declarer takes a club finesse instead, he makes the contract if it turns out that West has the king. In that case he would discard the queen of hearts on the ace of clubs.

The finesses are equally likely to succeed, and which queen to finesse appears to be a tossup. But, actually, it would be wrong to take either finesse before trying an altogether different approach to the play. After winning the diamond, South should play a club to the ace and ruff a club. He then leads a trump to the queen and ruffs another club. With both opponents following suit, the slam is a certainty, even though the club king has not yet fallen.

Declarer crosses to dummy with a trump and ruffs still another club, finally establishing the queen as a trick. He then leads a diamond. East wins and returns a heart, but South takes the ace, ruffs a diamond, and discards the queen of hearts on the queen of clubs.

In adopting this method of play, South at no point relinquishes the 50 per cent chance for a successful heart finesse. If it turns out that the clubs are unfavorably divided, which South will discover fairly early, he can still fall back on the heart finesse.

Three persons were injured, one seriously, in 10 traffic accidents occurring on Fayette County streets and highways overnight.

John Hurless, 22, of 1117 E. Paint St., was listed in serious condition in the intensive care unit at Riverside Hospital Saturday morning from injuries suffered in a one-car accident on Ohio 41-S, three miles south of Washington C.H. The nature of his injuries were not immediately known.

Sheriff's deputies said Hurless, and Robert L. Thompson, 35, of 1121 Lakeview Ave., were both thrown from their car when it went out of control and overturned. Thompson, suffered minor injuries and was released after treatment in the emergency room.

Officers said the accident occurred at 2 p.m. when the northbound car ran off the right side of the highway for nearly 500 feet. The car came back on the roadway and crossed left of center, traveled 100 feet in the ditch, then overturned on its top. The car flipped back on its wheels after skidding 45 feet on the top and came to rest in a field on the William Campbell estate.

Sheriff's deputies said they had not yet been able to determine which man was driving the car when the crash occurred. Both had been drinking officers said.

Bloodmobile collects 150 pints

Donations to the Red Cross Blood Thomas J. Hancock and Dr. Ralph Bank came to within 10 pints of the 160pint quota when the mobile unit was at the First Christian Church here Friday.

Mrs. Donald Moore, chairman of the Fayette County Red Cross chapter, said she felt 150 pints was very good, since the bloodmobile came here on Good Friday, a time when most churches were holding religious services. (Until this year, the quota had been 150 pints.)

Much of the success, however, was attributed to members of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the New Holland Church of Christ, who sponsored this visit of the bloodmobile and recruited the donors.

Appointments were made for 170, but not all of them showed up. Thirty-three came without appointment and 10 of the volunteers were rejected by the attending physicians. Fifteen gave blood for the first time, and 90 donors asked that their donations be considered replacement for blood previously given to relatives or friends.

ATTENDING physicians were Dr. Hugh W. Payton, Dr. Philip E. Binzel, Dr. Joseph M. Herbert, Dr. Byers W. Shaw, Dr. Robert A. Heiny, Dr.

In this glorious Easter Season may I share with you these eternal words of St. Francis: Lord, make us instruments of Thy peace! Where there is hatred, let me sow love; Where there is injury, pardon; Where there is doubt, faith; Where there is despair, hope; Where there is darkness, light; Where there is sadness, joy. Grant that we may not seek so much to be consoled, as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love. For it is in giving that we receive; it is in forgiving that we are forgiven; And it is in dying that we are born into Eternal Life!

Predict approval of control bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A co-author of a bill that would extend wage and price control authority for another year predicts its quick approval when Congress returns from Easter recess on April 30, the day the authority is to

Rep. Henry S. Reuss, D-Wis., said his prediction is based on the "current disastrous inflationary indicators.

Reuss, a member of the Senate-House conference committee that produced the compromise bill, referred only in general to inflationary pressures but his comment came after the Bureau of Labor Statistics issued a report saying consumer prices in March increased at the highest rate in zz years.

A record 3.2 per cent jump in grocery prices was the biggest factor in the increase. That rise followed record increases of 2.3 per cent in February and 2.5 per cent in January and was the largest since the BLS began tabulating grocery prices in

Reuss predicted no difficulty for the control bill in the Senate because the bill is essentially identical to the original Senate-passed measure.

"As for the House," he said, "the Senate provisions added in the conference report sufficiently strengthened the weak House version

so as to make it acceptable to many of us who voted against the House bill on the first time around."

Another conferee, Chairman Wright Patman, D-Tex., of the House Banking Committee, said he felt the White House should have moved to break the impasse over the bill by supporting the residents will take up rifles and drive the occupiers from the hamlet. "The people down there (the insurgents) have no business in Wounded Knee," Randall said. "We set a deadline, and if there has been no surgents used a radio supplied by the Justice Department to contact him late Friday, asking for a meeting. 'I said we were willing to meet if a precise agenda aimed at a settlement were to be discussed. There was no response to that," Hellstern said.

Meanwhile, Oglala Sioux Tribal Chairman Richard Wilson said a federal court order is being sought to force U.S. marshals and FBI personnel from the reservation.

Wilson said he and the tribal government would support the displaced residents with anything necessary to retake the village. He said that could include armed support.

The Indians who occupied the village have made demands ranging from reform of U.S. government policy on Indian affairs to remedies of alleged mismanagement on the Pine Ridge Indian Reservation, on which Wounded Knee is located.

Poor weather and muddy fields limited fieldwork to under one day during the week ending April 13. Soil moisture supplies are rated adequate by two per cent of the reporters and surplus by the remaining 98 per cent.

As of Monday, April 16, plowing for corn and soybeans was 25 per cent complete as little progress was made last week. Last year, 60 per cent was plowed by this time. Normal progress for the date is also 60 per cent.

Oat seeding is now over 10 per cent done compared with 20 per cent seeded in 1972 and is well below the five-year average of 50 per cent seeded by April

Very little progress was made in potato planting last week as farmers are hardly more than just started in most areas. Normally, 15 per cent of the potatoes are planted by this date. Under five per cent of the sugar beets are planted compared to 15 per cent for the date in 1972 and normal progress of 35 per cent. Tobacco beds are now 45 per cent sown, slightly behind the 1972 progress and compares with 65 per cent normally seeded by April 16.

Agriculture Markets

Sharply higher prices for wheat, feed grains and soybeans and sharply lower prices for hogs highlighted developments in commodity markets during the first two weeks of April. Cattle prices remained steady.

Cash corn at Chicago reached $1.66 a bushel, about 40 cents above April, 1972, levels. Soybean prices continued their volatility as cash beans at Chicago sold around $6.50 a bushel, up $1 for the two-week period, and nearly $3 more than a year ago.

Wholesale soybean meal at Decatur, Ill., traded around $205 a ton, up $30 in two weeks. A year ago soybean meal was selling at $94.50. Wholesale soybean oil prices traded in a range of one cent per pound, at around 14.5 cents, which was two cents higher than a year ago.

Primarily as a result of greatly increased sales to Russia, cash wheat at Kansas City sold for $2.45 a bushel. This was 12.5 cents higher than in early April and 85 cents higher than in April of last year.

Hog prices declined from $2-$3.50 per hundredweight during the first two weeks of April.

Choice steer prices remained nearly steady - around $44.50 per hundredweight at Omaho — up $10.50 from a year earlier. Choice steer beef carcasses traded around $71.50, which was $1.50 higher than in early April.

No. 1 large white eggs traded at 41.5 cents per dozen in Chicago in early April, up 2.5 cents for the two-week period. Prices are 22 cents per dozen higher than last year. Broiler prices were steady trading around 46 cents per pound, up 20 cents from year earlier prices.

'Big Idea' winner is announced

Gary Reiterman, Rt. 1, Mount Sterling, has been named a winner in the 1973 "Big Idea Bonanza" hog management contest sponsored by American Cyanamid Co.

Reiterman was one of 50 pork producers from 12 states recognized for their practical ideas on how to make swine production more efficient and profitable. As a winner, he will receive one ton of pig starter or sow feed. Cyanamid will provide the feed through his local feed dealer

Reiterman markets 1,500 heads of hogs a year from a grow-out operation, purchasing one-third of his pigs locally and the rest from Kentucky. He farms a total of 850 acres with his father, Raymond. He also feeds out about 30 head of cattle a year, keeps a few sheep to clean up pastures, and raises corn and soybeans.

His winning idea described a way to transfer small pigs or larger hogs from one place to another without a loading chute. He puts side boards or stock racks on the new-type of implements trailer that will lie flat on the ground when released. He says this method works well.

Ohio ponds Management for fish growth

COLUMBUS - Pond water is vital in following rates under average con- Ohio ponds will support trout. the life of fish. In addition to providing them a "swimming pool," it nourishes their food, supplies oxygen, and gives them protection. Its temperature and pH (hydrogen ion concentration) can be a matter of life or death for fish.

Microscopic plants and animals called plankton are basic fish foods. The production of plankton is directly related to the fertility of the water, reports Tom Stockdale, Extension wildlife specialist of the School of Natural Resources, Ohio State Uni-

Plankton is eaten by small fish and other organisms such as aquatic insects and their larvae which are in turn eaten by the larger fish. In any link in this food chain is weak or missing, an unbalanced condition will result, and fish production will suffer

According to Stockdale, the principle source of water for most Ohio ponds is runoff from the watershed of the pond. This runoff water carries fertile matter from soils of surrounding land into the pond. As a result, the fertility of the soils in an area determine the food for plankton in the water of the pond. Most runoff-fed in Ohio do not need additional fertilizer.

Where springs provide the principle source of water for the pond or where water is pumped into the pond from a ditch or tile drains, low fertility may be a problem in ponds managed for fish

"ONE QUICK method for determining the fertility of your pond is the 'elbow test,'' Stockdale suggests. "Immerse your arm vertically into the water with your fingers turned at a right angle to your arm. The image of your fingers should start to blue at a depth of 15 to 18 inches. A plankton bloom that permits light penetration no deeper than 15 to 18 inches into the pond is an indication of good fertility.

If light is penetrating to depths greater than 24 inches (hand is still clear) and this condition continues, Stockdale suggests that it may be necessary to supplement the natural fertility of the pond. This can be done in several ways. Improving the fertility of the watershed will gradually improve the fertility of the runoff-fed pond.

Another method is the direct application of fertilizer to the pond. This practice requires regular observation and should be initiated only by the very conscientious manager.

For ponds needing extra fertility, the first application of 80 to 100 pounds of fertilizer per surface acre may be made in late March or early April. Fertilizers balanced for the three main components or balanced for nitrogen and phosphorus and light for potash are suitable. Examples are 8-8-4, 10-10-10, or 12-12-12. Fertilizers should not contain such "inert" ingredients as lime, gypsum, or tobacco or have supplemental herbicides, insecticides, or fungicides.

The first application should produce a plankton bloom that is green or brown in color. If light still penetrates too deep, application may be repeated in 10 days. Continue applications as needed, but do not apply fertilizer after

Over-fertility is possible. It can result from too much fertilizer or from natural introduction into the pool of such high fertility materials as barnyard runoff. Excessive fertility usually exists if light penetration is less than 15 inches. Over-fertility can contribute to a fish kill.

SEVERAL FACTORS affect the rate of growth of fish such as fertility of water, availability of food chain organisms, and density of fish population. Stockdale says that as a general rule, fish will grew at the ditions:

Largemouth bass, inches in length for first five years: 6.3, 9.0, 11.6, 13.5, 15.8 respectively in length. Bluegill, inches in length for first five first five years: 6.4, 9.6, 12.6, 14.3, 16.7.

Water temperatures affect different species of fish in various ways. Largemouth bass usually spawn in May when water temperature reaches 60 degrees. Bluegills spawn when the emperature reaches 70 degrees. Trout will not normally reproduce in water warmer than 70 degrees and will not survive long when the water temmore than a few days. This is why few oxygen in water.

Also water temperature must be considered when using chemicals in pond management. Most fish toxicants and herbicides are more effective when the water is 60 degrees or warmer.

Some herbicides applies at recommended rates are safe for fish; however, they will kill fish eggs or fry (newly hatched fish). Therefore, temperature provides a clue as to when fish are spawning and may influence the timing of chemical applications.

Fish require at least four parts per million of dissolved oxygen, so it is important to consider this in pond management. Inexpensive test kits are available that enable the owner to perature exceeds 70 to 80 degrees for measure the amount of dissolved

JOHN GRUBER

County Extension Agent, Agriculture Four days of rain this week makes it difficult to prepare this column with much enthusiasm. We thought the nice weather last weekend might be a sign of things of come, but Mother Nature failed again.

Most farmers that I have talked to during the last week are eager to get back in the field. My guess is that we will see a lot of change in the usual tillage practices once farmers can get back in the field - especially among those farmers with no-till planters.

The Ohio Crop Reporting Service says that there was less than one day suitable for field work last week. Statewide reports indicate that plowing is only 25 per cent completed compared to a normal of 60 per cent for this time to compound the fertilizer problem.

FERTILIZER and petroleum may be in short supply. Chet Phillips, ASCS office manager, called Wednesday morning and said that his office will be

Wet weather last fall delayed harvest

Several things are working together

Several local fertilizer distributors indicate that they are not experiencing any shortages at present but may have problems with getting fertilizer to their warehouses later this spring due to transportation problems.

One distributor said that local farmers are aware of the possible shortages and have purchased fertilizer ahead and are storing it on the farm. At any rate there will be a mad rush for fertilizer deliveries as soon as we get a break in the weather.

FOOD PRICES! What makes them so high? I saw some interesting figures earlier this week explaining what makes up the price of a 29 cent can of tomatoes on the supermarket shelf. The figures come from the Del Monte

The raw tomato costs 3.4 cents. The processor gets 17 cents of which 12.8 cents is for the can and processing costs, 3.8 cents for shipping and 0.4 cents profit. The wholeseller gets 1.6 cents of which 0.3 cents is profit. The retailer gets 7 cents, of which 0.4 cents is profit.

I saw another figure this week that made me think about food prices. Maybe food prices aren't too high. Maybe its the price of the things we buy at the grocery store that are really too high! Would you believe that 30 cents of every dollar spent in the grocery store is spent for non-food items such as soap, brooms, light bulbs, tobacco

Nation's fruit crops badly hurt

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fruit crops, especially peaches, seemed to suffer the most from spring weather that numbed many areas with record cold spells or drenched them with record rainfalls.

Extensive flooding, especially in Mississippi, also took its agricultural toll as farmland was too saturated for

The cooperative extension service at Mississippi State University said Monday, "As of right now every acre in the state is too wet to plant.'

Nearly a half million acres of Mississippi farmland are under water. Ray Converse, agriculture statistician for the state Department of Agriculture and Commerce, said one million acres were covered at one point.

Converse said it would be impossible to determine just how much of a financial loss is involved in state agriculture due to the flooding.

He said between $6 million and $8 million in soybeans and cotton from last year still hasn't been harvested and "it's pretty much gone."

The state university extension service estimated 100,000 acres of potential cotton land are under water and noted that cotton planting should have begun April 15 and ended by May 15. It said only 35 per cent of the cotton land has been readied for planting.

Temperatures plunged into the teens in some areas during the cold snap the second week in April, nipping peach and apple blossoms in the bud.

Officials in Chilton County, Ala., say record low temperatures virtually destroyed the county's $3 million peach crop. Sen. John Sparkman asked Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz to declare the county a disaster area.

The Illinois crop reporting service estimated 80 to 90 per cent of Illinois' $1.38 million annual peach crop will be lost as well as 50 per cent of the state's $6 million annual apple crop.

Temperatures that dropped as low as 18 degrees at points in Virginia damaged some 20 per cent of the peach crop and 5 to 10 per cent of the state's apple crop. Dr. Ross Byers of the Winchester Fruit Research Laboratory said as a result consumers can expect

Strawberry harvesting equipment developed

WOOSTER - It appears that the nation's strawberry growers may be the next agricultural commodity group to take the big step from hand to mechanical harvest. A harvesting machine, now being developed, may hit the market this season, according to a report from Dr. E. L. Denisen, chairman of the Department of Horticulture at Iowa State University,

Denisen spoke at a national conference of small fruit research workers held at the Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center, Wooster. He said a Michigan-based firm is now developing a mechanical harvester combining the best features of pilot machines developed at experiment stations in two midwestern states.

A mechanical strawberry harvest was developed and refined at Iowa State University by horticulturists and agricultural engineers. At the same time, workers at the University of Arkansas developed, improved, and patented a harvester of a different design. Both machines feature a onceover harvest

The Iowa State machine uses a scoop, vibrating tines, forced air, conveyor belts and plastic netting. A rotary mower clips the plants.

The Arkansas invention was accepted for commercial production by Blueberry Equipment Company. It is self-propelled with a sickle-bar mounted on the front. The machine uses comb and brush strippers, elevators, and pneumatic system which literally "vacuums" up the berries. Debris is blown out the back of the harvester. The machine is much larger than the Iowa invention, and is mounted on high-flotation tires

Iowa State scientists, in perfecting their machine, developed a new picking device featuring paired corkscrew-shaped, vinyl heads. These show great promise for separating berries from the plants with a minimum of damage. Arkansas and Iowa workers got together with Blueberry Equipment Company personnel and have agreed to use the patents of both research stations in a single machine using several concepts which should bring the harvest of the highly perishable crop to quicker realization.

Denisen said he felt the cooperation and sharing of the ideas would bring a more rapid conclusion to the development of a practical, efficient machine to harvest processing strawberries.

The Iowa scientist said that breeding programs for concentrated ripening are continuing at both instutions. And while the mechanical harvester development signals a new era in strawberry production, Denisen feels many problems remain to be solved especially in breeding for disease resistance, firmness of berries, and improved yield of single harvest berries. The machine will also become more sophisticated. Denisen expects cultural sytems in strawberry production to undergo evolutionary changes in the years ahead.

Denisen's report was one of a number presented during the 2-day scientist conference. Most of the information exchanged by the scientists was preliminary data from research with diseases and culture of nearly every small fruit crop grown in North America, including strawberries, bramble fruits, blueberries, cranberries, and grapes.

Farm tractor accidents kill 611 in Ohio

During the 17-year period, 1956 through 1972, there have been 611 fatal farm tractor accidents investigated in Ohio, according to W.E. Stuckey, Extension leader, safety, Ohio State

Tractor overturn was responsible for 63 per cent of the victims. This was an average of 22 deaths per year from overturns alone, he says. Two-thirds of these deaths occurred when the tractor overturned sidewise

About 50 per cent of those killed were members of full-time farmer families, and 20 per cent had full-time employment other than farming. Stuckey points out that 19 per cent of the deaths were youngsters 15 years of age and under, while those over 65 made up 22

Only one-fifth of the deaths occurred on the highway, and weather was a factor in 11 per cent of the accidents. Stuckey says. Mechanical failure was a contributing factor in less than six per cent of the cases, but about one-half of the fatalities occurred with wide-front-

'Tax preference' income

Taxpayers bruised and smarting from their annual encounter with the Internal Revenue Service will find no balm in Sen. Walter F. Mondale's new variations on the loophole theme. The burden of the Minnesota senator's message goes like this:

"Thousands of wealthy Americans are piling up huge amounts of income every year from capital gains, oil depletion allowance, tax shelters and other tax loopholes, and paying a smaller percentage of it in taxes than working people making $6,000 a year."

That sort of analysis galls the ordinary taxpayer, and rightly so. We are reminded by Mondale's

figures that a substantial number of people are legally able to escape paying anything like their fair share of the tax burden.

The 1969 Tax Reform Act provided, among other things, that a minimum tax must be imposed on various kinds of income shielded in one way or another from taxation at normal rates. This involves such things as the oil depletion allowance, capital gains provisions, stock options, provisions for faster than usual depreciation, and so forth.

Treasury Department figures show, as Sen. Mondale notes, that such income is treated tenderly indeed despite the minimum tax provision. In 1961 almost 24,000 Americans had "tax preference" income averaging about 166,000 dollars each. These favored taxpayers," the senator tells us, "paid an average tax of only four per cent on their loophole income." No minimum tax at all was paid, says Sen. Mondale, by another 75,000-plus individuals who enjoy tax preference income averaging $30,013 apiece.

This sort of disclosure would be irritating enough to wage earners at any time. It is particularly so just when the annual plucking and shearing operation has reached its

In 1967 the House of Representatives—then a congressman, was appointed to—(3) be fined $40,000 for his sins; and (4) carried out one of the most spectacularly unconstitutional acts in the history of the Republic: it refused to seat a duly elected member of Congress on the Ground that his personal life and business ethics made him unfit for membership.

The representative was, of course, Adam Clayton Powell from Harlem a talented, star-crossed Negro who had long offended the Southern barons by his refusal to say "Yes, Massa." His life-style, combined with his power as chairman of the House Committee on Education and Labor, had built up a legion of enemies. (Powell died April 4,

The legality or illegality of some of Powell's transactions is not the issue there is no doubt about his casual approach to certain articles in the criminal code. The point is that the House of Representatives is not a court of law: when a Representative appears to be sworn in, the only relevant question of the legality of his election. But in Powell's case, the House chose to sit as judge, prosecutor, and jury on his personal characteristics.

IT BEGAN when the House passed a resolution barring Powell from his seat pending investigation and recommendation by a Select Committee. Fortunately for students of American government, Andy Jacobs of Indiana, this committee and — at a friend's suggestion — kept a detailed diary of the ensuing inquest. Published as "The Powell Affair: Freedom Minus One' (Bobbs-Merrill), it is one of the most fascinating inside views of Congress at work that I have ever read.

The select Committee, lacking precedents, was completely at sea as to what procedures to follow. For example, what form should be followed in requesting Powell to testify?

When the letter was prepared, the committee's counsel noted that "in the second paragraph the word "summon" is used. This is a word stronger than 'invite' but not so strong as the issuance of a subpoena.'

One member immediately argued that the word summon "will sound to the public like an order to appear. Then if Mr. Powell should refuse, it would seem an illegal act.'

He preferred "invite," and "invite"

At another point someone suggested that Powell, who was putting on quite a performance offstage, might go to the Supreme Court and get an injunction. Chairman Celler said in that case he would move to impeach the Supreme

Without recapitulating the details, the Select Committee eventually recommended unanimously that that the people of the United States Powell (1) be seated; (2) be censured choose their representatives, that the

BY COINCIDENCE I happened to be with Marvin Watson and President Johnson in the Oval Office when the committee's judgment came in on the ticker. The President read it, nodded his head sadly, and said, "They're going to throw him out.'

"Even though the committee (of five Democrats and four Republicans) was unanimous?" I asked. "Johnnie," he eplied, "they are tasting blood and once they get the flavor, they're not going to stop til the last drop is gone.'

He was right. By a vote of 222-202 the committee's recommendations were rejected and the governor of New York was notifed that Powell's seat was Powell won the special election, and went to court to get a ruling on the legality of his being barred from taking his seat. He was again elected in 1968, and in 1969 the Supreme Court ruled 7-1 that the House had acted unconstitutionally in excluding him. His triumph was short-lived, though of immense symbolic importance: he was defeated in 1970, but the point was made — one hopes once and for all and condemned for gross misconduct; Congress is not a private club.

This is the first time I've ever felt the need to publicly complain about what is being printed in our local paper.

When my children actually snickered while looking at "certain pictures" and reading the "enlightening captions" accompaning such pictures I decided it is high time the decent people (are there any left?) of our community to loudly voice their disapproval. (Do any of you even care!)

I do not believe in censorship of news but smut is a different matter and some one in your offices should apply a little common sense to their esteemed and influential position and check into what is being published that might be offensive to your reading public and our children.

There are pornography movies and magazines for the people who enjoy such things; let them pay for this entertainment in sources other than our

Upon reading Monday's paper I am now emitting a grunt of pure disgust.

Come on people of Washington C. H. and Fayette County, let us unite. We can no longer afford to remain the silent majority or the pornography on page 9 of Monday (a New Orleans Opera Scene) will next become an enlarged front page item?

DEAR ABBY: I am a 26-year-old wife and mother of a 3-year-old son. Du to financial circumstances, I am a working mother but because my husband works nights (he's a baker) he stays with the baby all day. I asked my doctor if the baby would be affected if I worked days, and he said as long as he is with one loving parent there would be

My problem is that I just found out that my best friend's husband has told others that I am an unfit mother because all children need their mothers with them and that I am selfish to be

Although my girl friend didn't say anything, I'm quite hurt that she didn't stick up for me, and frankly don't think our friendship can now last because I'm so angry. What would you suggest? FIT MOTHER

DEAR FIT: You seem to be getting a lot of second-hand feedback. Why don't you just tell whomever it was who told you what your best friend's husband supposedly told others about you, that there is so much backbiting going on, you never believe a thing unless you hear it with your own ears-which isn't a bad idea.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter, 20, and my son, 18, recently got into a violent argument. Here's the story: My son was recently fitted with contact lenses, and the other night he removed them at the dinner table. My daughter was revolted and said he should have left the dinner table. My son said that since contact lenses serve the same purpose as eyeglasses, it was no more "revolting," to remove them at the dinner table than it would be to remove one's eyeglasses. What do you say?

BROOKLYNFATHER DEAR FATHER: I say, all the considerations your son has for his fellow diners, he can stick in his eye.

DEAR ABBY: Your letter about whether it's against the law or not to bury a person with a fifth of bourbon in his casket brings to mind my German grandmother.

She was fond of playing cards and having a "schnapps" with friends, so she left money for her wake and also for brand-new playing cards, pencil and pad, four glasses, and a pint.

When the Day of Reckoning comes she will be ready to start all over again. Why not prepare for the afterlife now? Wouldn't it be awful if we had to start from scratch as the world once did?

Today In History

Today is Saturday, April 21, the 111th day of 1973. There are 254 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1967, the army in Greece seized control and set up military rule.

On this date:

In 753 B.C., according to tradition, Rome was founded by Romulus. In 1832, the Black Hawk Indian war began along the upper Mississippi. In 1836, the independence of Texas was assured by defeat of Mexicans at San Jacinto, 16 miles east of Houston. In 1898, the United States recognized the independence of Cuba

In 1945, in World War II, a soviet broadcast said Russian troops had penetrated the outer limits of Berlin. In 1954, U.S. Air Force planes began flying French troops from France to Indochina to bolster the French bastion at Dien Bien Phu.

Ten years ago: Neutralist Prince Souvanna Phouma of Laos said Communist forces agreed to halt an offensive that had brought the coalition government to the point of collapse. Five years ago: U.S. telephone service was nearly normal despite a national strike by communications workers. One year ago: Two Apollo 16 astronauts spent seven hours exploring highlands of the moon. Thought for today: Though familiarity may not breed contempt, it takes off the edge of admiration -William Hazlitt, English essayist, 1778-

Police said Byrd summed the women to the house after he forcibly removed his 4-year-old grandson from a nursery school. The women notified police but officers remained outside the house while they went inside to talk to Byrd.

After shots were fired, police rushed the house and found Byrd, his wife and daughters mortally wounded. The child was not hurt.

Tax delays prove costly for schools

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Delays in collecting 1972 taxes on the county level have caused schools in at least 51 counties to borrow money to operate for part of this year, an official of the Ohio School Board Association said

Dean Jollay, an association official, said some schools borrowed for only a short period, while others, such as Akron, continued to take out loans to cover expenses. Jollay said he did not tertained at their home Sunday morhave figures on all 88 Ohio counties. Schools needed the borrowed funds after auditors in 66 counties requested 30-day extensions and 13 counties asked for two-month extensions from the Ohio Board of Tax Appeals in collecting 1972 taxes. School districts receive about 73 per cent of the local property tax collections.

Leonard Myers, a supervisor at the tax board, said about $1.3 billion from delinquent county collections would be earmarked for the school districts for use throughout 1973.

Tax bills are due to be mailed annually Dec. 20. Any extension is initially requested from the county commission for 30 days. Should additional extensions be necessary, the Board of Tax Appeals has unlimited authorization to approve them one month at a time. Hearings are not always necessary.

'At the hearing, they must give us extension beyond April 25 even this year is an unreasonable time," said Dale Teeters, a board official.

Lee Trevino grabs golf tourney lead

Lee Trevino is within sight of achieving that "I played into the wind all day." two of his prime career goals.

He had a one-shot lead going into today's third round of the $200,000 MONY-Tournament of Champions. Once more he ticked off those major targets he has set for himself:

"I really want to win this tournament," Trevino said after fighting gusty, shifting winds for a one-underpar 71 in Friday's second round.

"I consider this one of the most important tournaments in the worldmaybe No. 4. You want to win any tournament you play in, but when you beat the champions of all the other tournaments, then you're a champion of champions.

"And I want to win $1 million faster than anyone else has ever done it."

Trevino could achieve both with a victory here. He has career earnings of more than $960,000—in less than six full years on the tour-and this tournament offers a $40,000 first prize.

There are only three other players-Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer and Billy Casper—who have passed the $1 million mark in pro golf career earnings. Nicklaus did it the fastest, in just over 10 years.

And both Nicklaus and Palmer are challenging Trevino for the title in this tournament that brings together an elite field of 31 players who have won regular tour titles in the last 12 months.

Nicklaus, the pre-tourney favorite, had another 70 on the 7,114-yard La Costa Country Club course and was just one stroke off the pace at 140 despite some erratic play. He was tied with big J.C. Snead, the runner-up in the Masters, who had a second round 68.

The 43-year-old Palmer, like Nicklaus a three-time winner of this tournament, was one more back at 141 after a 71. He was tied with Australian veteran Bruce Crampton, who had a 68 First round leader Jimmy Colbert fell back in the windy, threatening weather. He blew 10 strokes higher than Thursday's score with a 76 and was tied at 142 with Bert Yancey and Homero Blancas.

Masters champion Tommy Aaron was out of it. He had a 73-148.

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — this season, said the winds shifted so

For example on the 435-yard 10th hole, he used a three wood for his second shot. The day before he needed only an eight iron. But he whipped the wood shot eight feet from the pin and made the putt for the first of his two

The other came on the long 16th, where a three-iron second shot left him only 10 feet from the hole.

Unlike Tolan, who was hitless, Rose did a few other things to contribute to the victory. He threw out a runner at the plate, singled and scored the Reds first run and tripled in the two runs that in the end proved the difference.

Atlanta's two runs came on Henry Aaron's home run, his fourth of the year and the 677th of his career. He needs just 37 to tie Babe Ruth's lifetime record of 714.

The homer was Aaron's 93rd against Cincinnati, more than he's hit against any other team and his seventh off winning pitcher Don Gullett, 3-1.

1953 Reds to be featured

CINCINNATI — The 1953 Cincinnati Reds and a combined team of 1953 National and American League allstars will be paired in the 1973 Old Timers game at Riverfront Stadium June 16.

The extravaganza will precede the Cincinnati-Pittsburgh game, which starts at 5:30 p.m.

Invitations have been extended to many of the former stars, including two Hall of Famers — Stan Musial and Casey Stengel.

IT WAS 20 years ago that the last allstar game was played at Crosley Field, a 5-1 victory by the National League. The ptiching staff of the 1953 Reds featured lefthanders Joe Nuxhall and Ken Raffensberger and righthander Herm Wehmeier. Two of the young infielders, Roy McMillan and Johnny Temple, were starting on their way to stardom. Ted Kluszewski had reached his prime as he hit 40 homers and knocked in 108 runs in 1953. Steady Bobby Adams led National League third sackers in assists that season.

Gus Bell led the outfielders, hitting .300 with 30 home runs and 105 runsbatted-in. Jim Greengrass also knocked in 100 runs and Willard Marshall was a consistent performer in right field.

The catchers were Hobie Landrith. Andy Seminick and Frank Baldwin.

Although the 1953 Reds finished sixth, it was a popular team with the fans and one that was on its way to better things. Six members of the team, Bell, Temple, McMillan, Nuxhall, Kluszewski and Wally Post, eventually were selected to the Reds' Hall of Fame. They have all been invited to return for the reunion, along with many others on that club.

The 1953 all-star game was a good one and well-remembered. It was highlighted by the play of Enos Slaughter, the Old Warhorse who is now head baseball coach at Duke University.

It was a defensive gem by Slaughter that is best recalled and it ranks among the greatest catches in all-star history Harvey Kuenn lashed a wicked liner down the rightfield line, labeled an extra-base hit all the way. But Slaughter raced to his left and slid on his shoulder to make the catch.

Slaughter and the two Hall of Famers are just three of the 18 all-stars invited to recapture some of the events of that all-star contest

Such National League favorites as Pee Wee Reese, Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons have been invited as well as American League stalwarts George Kell, Larry Doby, Billy Goodman and Nellie Fox.

BOSTON (AP) — The New York one period and then capitalized on poor Knicks held the trump hand in the National Basketball Association's Eastern championship playoff today while the Boston Celtics worried about the condition of super star John Havlicek.

The Boston captain suffered a right shoulder injury when caught in a pick by New York's Dave DeBusschere and Bill Bradley in the third period, and was ineffective the rest of the way.

"It was a good play," Havlicek said. 'I've been through a million picks like that." He said he and DeBusschere hit shoulders. "I just couldn't shoot after that. INDIANAPOLIS (AP)-Allan Hornyak of Ohio State was gallant loser here Friday night in the opener of the 1973 Indiana-Ohio college all-star basketball series

But the Buckeye guard gave Indiana Coach Angus Nicoson fair warning about tonight's rematch at St. John Arena in Columbus, Ohio.

Nicoson said, "Hornyak already told us it will be different in Ohio. He's some competitor.'

The 6-foot-1 guard led all scorers with 18 points, and Len Paul of Akron added 15 Friday night at Butler University's Hinkle Fieldhouse. However, Indiana came from behind to grab an 81-79 triumph, its third straight in the series.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — The Pennsylvania lottery netted the state $70 million in its first year of operation, double the original forecast, officials have announced.

The gross was $153.4 million, from both the 50-cent and $1 lottery tickets. Henry Kaplan, executive director of the lottery, said Thursday about $65.8 million were paid out for prizes.

The figures are for a 52-week period. The lottery began March 15, 1972, but because of the flood no tickets were sold from July 12 to Aug. 16.

Kaplan said the original estimate of net earnings was about $35 million

forces 50 families out

WILLIAMSBURG, Mich. (AP) -Natural gas eruptions have forced some 50 families to evacuate their homes near this Michigan community. Officials are not sure what is causing the bubbling craters.

Because of the danger that a spark might ignite an explosion, State Police and Grand Traverse County sheriff's deputies cordoned off the area, power was shut off and smoking was banned.

Officials, including geologists from Michigan's Department of Natural Resources, said they are baffled by the eruptions. They appeared to rule out leakage from a gas well about three miles away, however.

The area is in the western part of Michigan's Lower Peninsula, not far from Lake Michigan.

County officials said geyser activity increased Thursday. Numerous potholes and geysers have appeared in the area, honeycombing an area about four miles in circumference.

Families began evacuating before sunrise Thursday.

One large crater — 20 feet across and two to three feet deep - cut across Michigan 72, forcing police to close a 15-mile stretch of the highway.

The air of the affected area was heavy with the gas, observers said, as the geysers erupted with sounds much like roaring waterfalls. Some of the venting gas forced subterranean water to spout two to three feet high

Fingernails a Clue to Defects

Scientific research yields its dividends in the strangest ways. Even a small observation may be responsible for clinical advantages. Fingernails of newborn babies were found to be useful in determining the presence of congenital defects.

Dr. George Cassady of the University of Alabama discovered that the amount of nitrogen in the nails indicates some types of birth disorders.

Dr. Cassady says "the nail trimmings obtained within two weeks of birth can be useful in determining early signs of disorders and beginning treatment immediately.'

Such findings emphasize the constant need to encourage scientific research along the most esoteric paths.

A novel and interesting approach to the problem of migraine headaches has just been released by the Menninger Clinic in Topeka, Kan. Patients are taught the methods of using biofeedback to control brain waves.

Dr. J.D. Sargent and his co-workers found that there is a correlation between the relief from migraine, cluster headaches, and an increased blood flow in the hands.

Patients who learned the biofeedback approach were able to increase the flow of blood in the hands and thereby elevate the temperature of the skin. This can then be responsible for the control of the headache. The preliminary studies hold promise for this new method of controlling an old and distressing disorder.

When the skin of some people is stroked with a pin or a tongue depressor or even a cotton-tipped applicator, red streaks appear on the surface. This increased sensitivity is known as dermagraphism, or skin writing. A name or design can be elicited by the gentlest scratching of the skin surface.

This finding has been known to exist in some people with increased activity of the thyroid gland. Even in the absence of any medical condition dermagraphism can occur.

Dr. U. W. Leavell, of the University of Kentucky Medical Center, has successfully used this interesting phenomenon to study the possibility of a drug overdose in unconscious patients.

When patients were brought to his hospital in coma, skin writing was used as an indication of excessive intake of drugs.

This can be a valuable addition to the present method in use for the rapid determination of the cause of unconsciousness.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH.....Learning to use leisure is a very special art that must be acquired long before you are suddenly (and often prematurely!) retired.

Opening lead - queen of diamonds.

It stands to reason that a finesse should be avoided when there is an alternative play that may gain a trick without incurring the risk inherent in a

South is in six spades and West leads a diamond, won by declarer with the ace. What should he do next?

Eleven tricks are in sight, counting a diamond ruff in dummy, and the only real problem is to avoid a heart loser. Obviously, if a heart finesse is attempted and succeeds, the slam will come marching home. Equally, if the finesse is taken and fails, so will the

Similarly, if declarer takes a club finesse instead, he makes the contract if it turns out that West has the king. In that case he would discard the queen of hearts on the ace of clubs.

The finesses are equally likely to succeed, and which queen to finesse appears to be a tossup. But, actually, it would be wrong to take either finesse before trying an altogether different approach to the play.

After winning the diamond, South should play a club to the ace and ruff a club. He then leads a trump to the queen and ruffs another club. With both opponents following suit, the slam is a certainty, even though the club king has not yet fallen.

Declarer crosses to dummy with a trump and ruffs still another club, finally establishing the queen as a trick. He then leads a diamond. East wins and returns a heart, but South takes the ace, ruffs a diamond, and discards the queen of hearts on the queen of clubs

In adopting this method of play, South at no point relinquishes the 50 per cent chance for a successful heart finesse. If it turns out that the clubs are unfavorably divided, which South will discover fairly early, he can still fall back on the heart finesse.

The car came back on the roadway and crossed left of center, traveled 100 feet in the ditch, then overturned on its top. The car flipped back on its wheels after skidding 45 feet on the top and came to rest in a field on the William Campbell estate.

Bloodmobile collects 150 pints

Donations to the Red Cross Blood Thomas J. Hancock and Dr. Ralph Bank came to within 10 pints of the 160pint quota when the mobile unit was at the First Christian Church here

Mrs. Donald Moore, chairman of the Fayette County Red Cross chapter, said she felt 150 pints was very good, since the bloodmobile came here on Good Friday, a time when most churches were holding religious services. (Until this year, the quota had been 150 pints.)

Much of the success, however, was attributed to members of the Christian Women's Fellowship of the New Holland Church of Christ, who sponsored this visit of the bloodmobile and recruited the donors

Appointments were made for 170, but not all of them showed up. Thirty-three came without appointment and 10 of the volunteers were rejected by the attending physicians. Fifteen gave blood for the first time, and 90 donors asked that their donations be considered replacement for blood previously given to relatives or friends.

ATTENDING physicians were Dr. Hugh W. Payton, Dr. Philip E. Binzel, Dr. Joseph M. Herbert, Dr. Byers W. Shaw, Dr. Robert A. Heiny, Dr.
